Tomás Raigal López
Sofware developer

About me

My name is Tomás, I'm 21 years old and I'm a software developer. I studied Web Application Development and immediately started working while continuing to learn and train as a developer. I am a proactive, communicative, and assertive person.

I work well in a team and am capable of adapting to all kinds of situations. I am motivated by challenges and am eager to continue growing both professionally and personally.

I am also part of an online community called Software Crafters, where various developers come together to learn and enjoy coding, which allows me to keep training and stay up to date with new trends and technologies in a dynamic and social way. Through the use of "katas" in this community, I continue learning new programming languages and techniques every day.
